 Good Quarters for Teams and Teamsters.

SEMI-WEEKLY SOUTH KENTUCKIAN

FRIDAY, JUNE 23, 1888.

W. A. WILCOX, Editor and Proprietor.
J. O. RUST, Associate Editor.
F. E. BARTLEY, Business Manager.

The Kentucky Press Association meets in Danville next week and a fine meeting is promised.

Kid-glove Ben will have a hard time convincing the horny-handed sons of toil that he is their friend.

Owensboro wants the next meeting of the Press Association. When the question comes to a vote put us down for Owensboro.

The kid-glove may do very well for the parlor, but the old bandana is at home in the cornfields and blacksmith's shops.

Here it is: Cleveland and Thurman vs. Harrison and Morton, the Rose and the Bandana vs the Kid-glove and the Bar!

The candidates are still sawing away regardless of the hot weather. According to the show bills they will perform at the court house next Monday afternoon.

Charles Dudley Warner, editor of Harper's Magazine, is making a tour of eastern Kentucky for the purpose of writing up the mineral resources of that section.

Tammany is going to celebrate the Fourth with a glorious Democratic love feast. Carlisle, Breckinridge and McCreary, will participate in the oratory.

The Chinese of Bismarck, Dakota, held a jollification jubilee over Harrison's nomination. Nobody has ever yet heard of the American laborers rejoicing over kid-glove Ben.

The primary election in this county to-morrow week should be remembered by all good Democrats. Let us give Bill Kille a rousing send-off. This is "presidential year" and we should fire a thundering volley every time we take aim.

Ben Harrison is going to have trouble carrying his own state. As soon as he was nominated the Post, the organ of the German Republicans of Southern Indiana, and the Bulletin, the official paper of Vanderburgh county, bolted, and are going to do battle for Cleveland and Thurman.

The Republican Convention labored for a week and brought forth the following:

MCKINLEY
SHERMAN
HARRISON

A colored prophet has appeared at Rochester, Ky., who says he is delegated by the Lord to lead his people back to Africa. He thinks the time is near at hand for the departure, but if we are correctly informed the prophet and his people will not find good walking across the Atlantic at this season of the year.

The Tobacco Leaf pokes fun at us because we were hoodwinked by the D. V. It would "spear us with a stab," pierce us with a pigmy straw," as it were. Well, well, we have only one hope of revenge, we can fall back on the old adage that "the laughter best who laughs last," and if we never overtake our friends, on the Road, in this world, we feel reasonably assured that we will have a decided advantage of them in the world to come.

The Republican convention was forced into a liquor resolution at the last minute, and it put forth the most ridiculous stratagem on record. Here it is: "The first concern of all good government is the virtue and sobriety of the people and the purity of their homes. The Republican party cordially sympathizes with all wise and well directed efforts for the promotion of temperance and morality. It is the 'first concern of good government,' why did the convention neglect to devise a plan to save the country, unless, indeed, the party is not concerned in good government."

The Chicago Tribune, one of the leading Republican organs, echoes the real sentiment of the thoughtful members of its party concerning the nomination of Harrison and Morton: "It would be sheer hypocrisy on the part of The Tribune to pretend that it thinks the convention placed in nomination the strongest candidate before it, for its readers would not believe such an opinion sincere."

No man can controvert the proposition that the normal, healthy way to manage local affairs is for the people to vote for the best candidates. There may arise instances when good men are put out as cat-paws by a ring or clique, and then it is the proper thing to set down on the power behind the throne by defeating their candidates. We believe the people of Christian county are in this frame of mind. As the candidates go amongst them the question should be in every one's mind, "Who are you?" "How did you get here?" If he is the creature of a ring that would own the office and patronage of the county, then a man should search no further for a reason to refuse to vote for him.

GROVER'S SPEECH.

Last Tuesday when notified of his nomination by the St. Louis convention, President Cleveland delivered the following address. Comment is unnecessary as every line speaks for itself:

"I can not but be profoundly impressed when I see about me the messengers of the national democracy bearing its summons to duty. The political party to which I owe allegiance both honors and commands me; it places in my hands its proud standard and bids me bear it high at the front in a battle which it wages bravely because conscious of right, candidly because its trust is in the people, and soberly because it comprehends the obligations which success imposes. The message which you bring awakens within me the liveliest sense of personal gratitude and satisfaction, and the honor which you tender me is itself such that there might well be no room for any other sentiment, and yet I cannot rid myself of grave and serious thoughts when I remember that the party supremacy is not alone involved in the conflict which presses on us, but that we struggle to secure and save the cherished institutions, the welfare and happiness of a nation of freemen. Familiarity with the great office which I hold has but added to my apprehension of its sacred character and the consecration demanded of him who holds its immense responsibility. It is the repository of the people's will and the power within its vision should be its protection and zeal for the welfare of the humiliated citizen, and with quick ear it should catch from the remotest corner of the land the plea of the people for justice and for right. For the sake of the people, he who holds this office of theirs should resist every encroachment upon its legitimate functions, and for the sake of the integrity and usefulness of the office it should be kept near to the people, and be administered in full sympathy with their wants and needs."

This occasion reminds me most vividly of the scene when, four years ago, I received a message from my party similar to that which you now deliver. With all that has passed since that day I can truly say that the feeling of awe with which I heard the summons then is intensified many fold when it is repeated now. Four years ago I knew that our chief executive, if not elected, would be elected by the people to whom it belonged, and become a perversion of all it ought to be, but I did not know how its motives had already been loosened. I knew four years ago how well devised were the principles of true democracy for the successful operation of a government by the people and for the people, but I did not know how absolutely necessary their application then was for the restoration to the people of their safety and prosperity. I knew then that abuses and extravagances had crept into the management of public affairs, but I did not know their numerous forms, nor the tenacity of their grasp. I knew then something of the bitterness of partisan obduracy, but I did not know how bitter, how reckless and how shameless it could be. I knew then that the American people were patriotic and just, but I did not know how grandly they loved their country, nor how noble and generous they were. I shall not dwell upon the acts and the policy of the administration now drawing to a close. The record is open to every citizen of the land, and yet I will not be denied the privilege of asserting at this time that, in the exercise of the functions of the high trust confided to me, I have yielded obedience only to the constitution and the solemn obligation of my oath of office. I have done those things which in the light of the understanding that has given me seemed most conducive to the welfare of our countrymen and the promotion of good government. I would not, if I could, for myself nor for you, avoid a single consequence of a fair interpretation of my conscience. It but remains for me to say to you, and through you to the democracy of the nation, that I accept the nomination with which they have honored me, and that I will in due time signify such acceptance in the usual formal manner.

Youum Yoked.
John Youum, who escaped from the Asylum some time since has been giving the Davless county people considerable trouble. He armed himself with a gun and threatened to burn houses and the like. He would not sleep in a house at night for fear of being captured. Dr. Stone, N. S. Gossett and Houston Boales went over to arrest Youum, which they succeeded in doing after several days waiting and watching, returning with him Wednesday night. The Owensboro Messenger details the affair as follows:

John H. Boales, the officer sent from Hopkinsville, Deputy Sheriff Boares and T. H. Hurl went to Whitesville yesterday and succeeded in recapturing John Youum the inmate. Youum with a shrewdness characteristic of the insane has not slept at home a single night since his return, hiding out in the woods at nightfall and returning to the house for his meals. Yesterday morning he went to the house of a neighbor, Jim Max Collier, who is a relative to "see his girl," as he afterward said. He gallantly left his gun out doors, and the officers slipped up and captured him. The alarm was then given and Youum rushed out, but the officers had surrounded the house and captured him without difficulty. "They started with him to town in a wagon, but when near Sam Bryant's, Youum jumped out of the wagon and ran across a field, Boares and Hurl gave chase, but the former soon returned and unhitched one of the horses and mounting it galloped a mile and one-half before he ran Youum down. He was then brought safely to town and lodged in jail. In ordinary conversation he talks like a sane man, but is full of cranky and murderous notions. The Whitesville people will breathe easier now that he is gone."

An exchange says the red-headed girl and white-horse craze has given way to one called "tips." The ladies count every time a gentleman tips his hat to them and the hundredth gentleman is supposed to be the one the lady receiving the tip will marry. The "tips" craze is spreading rapidly and young ladies are heard counting the tips as one passes them on the streets.

CROFTON.

W. W. Caldwell who escaped from the chain gang in your city a few days ago, came here yesterday while the town marshal was out of town, and took his little boy from his wife, and made good his escape.

Died, of cholera infantum, June 23, 1888, infant of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Davis, in the Stuart product neighborhood. To the bereaved parents, we extend our condolence, and would say to them, bow to the Masters will when he said "suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not."

Miss Lula Long of your city is visiting the family of A. B. Long here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Gray assisted by Messrs. Levi Burkholder and W. W. Eldridge, entertained about fifty young ladies and gentlemen at their residence Tuesday evening. About 10 o'clock the guests were invited to the dining room, where the tables were loaded with ice cream and cakes as fine and delicious as the stomach of an epicure could demand. The ice cream melted before that number with greater rapidity than snow ever did before the rays of sun. We noticed among the young ladies present Misses Leona Armstrong, Ellen Murphy, of Empire, Mattie and Emma Blaine, of Madisonville, Luis Long and Kate Blaine, of your city. We were satisfied that Charlie knew our caller for ice cream by insisting on us to have more. At 11:30 p. m. they all left for their homes, many with shawls around them, wishing that Mr. and Mrs. Gray would try to freeze them out again.

Mrs. Dutch Bowling who has been confined in the Asylum at Hopkinsville for a few weeks was brought home to-day by her husband A. G. Bowling.

Mrs. Nannie Prouse and Mrs. Joe Clark are visiting friends in Greenville.

Gas Explosion.

At a meeting of the directors of the Gas Company, Tuesday morning, it was decided to explode a legal bomb under the delinquent stockholders. A number of these have failed to respond to the call, and Secretary J. P. Smith has been instructed to call on them, and, if they fail to settle, suits will be at once instituted for the recovery by the Company of the various amounts. The contract for fifteen hundred feet has expired. When all the subscribers pay there will be a surplus of $500 in the treasury which will enable the well to be sunk several hundred feet deeper. The experts say it is very important that the boring should at least be continued a few hundred feet.

The Cairo & Cumberland Gap.

Col. B. A. Neale, of Mayfield, the executive head of the Cairo & Cumberland Gap enterprise, was in the city Monday night and held a quiet consultation with Henry Abernathy and a few other railroaders about the "situation." Mr. Abernathy would not talk about the matter, but from another source we learn that Col. Neale's project is substantially the same as Joe Board's; however, the Cairo proposition will not be submitted in the event Col. Board matures his project. He is expected in the city to day to bring matters to a head.

The Mammoth Cave Rate.

The L. & N. will sell tickets to the Mammoth Cave, on account of the State Teacher's Association, on July 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th, good until the 7th, for $1.50. The cave hotel will charge half rates, $1.50 per day, and the cave rates will be only $1 and $1.50. Anybody can take advantage of these reductions.

Murder at Earlington.

Tuesday night a colored preacher shot and killed an other colored man at Earlington. From what was learned it seems that a woman figured as the cause of the trouble. The murderer was arrested at an early hour Wednesday morning at his home in Earlington and taken to Madisonville where he was lodged in jail to await an examining trial.

The only ballot taken for Vice-President at Chicago, Monday, resulted as follows: The ballot was completed at 8:20 and resulted thus: Morton 591, Phelps 119, Bradley 103, Bruce 11, W. F. Thomas 1. Col. Bradley deserves great credit for making as good a showing as he did.

A Warning to Farmers.

A real case of fatal poisoning by contagion with virus of anthrax calls for notice, because of the danger of this poisoning by contact with diseased animals. The case was one of a workman in a leather ware-house in New York City, who in handling a lot of hides, received a scratch upon the neck by a portion (as it is supposed, and most probable) of a dried and hard part of the hide. The wound developed into malignant edema, which is precisely the character of the anthrax of cattle commonly known as black quarter or bloody murrain. Death came very rapidly in spite of the best treatment, so considered, but which, consisting of frequent doses of whiskey, was of very questionable value for in the treatment of cattle infected with this disease antiseptics and carbolic acid stimulants would be believed to add to the danger. The greatest care should be exercised in handling all animals which do of this disorder, and indeed of any other disease, for even when in the hands of a doctor, the disease is not always cured. The blood through a wound or scratch upon the skin.—N. Y. Times.

Electrical Alarm Clock.

An electrical attachment has been devised which may be applied to an ordinary clock for awakening sleepers at any given time. It takes the place of the ordinary alarm clock, which needs to be wound up the night before it is used. This electrical clock can be set to any given five minutes of each hour, and the bell will begin to ring at that time, and will ring until the switch is turned to cut off the electric current.
